State Funds Lose some K259,670 Million and US$13,326, 746 due to Corruption and Acts of Corruption

The Anti-Corruption Law was enacted on 7 August 2013 for ensuring the emergence of a clean government and good governance in Myanmar and the Anti-Corruption Commission was formed in 2014 in order to take action against those who commit briberies and losses to the State. In the fourth amendment to the law on 21 June 2018, a definition mentioned “Any person breaks the existing laws, rules, disciplines and procedures to cause losses to monetary, materials and property of the State in demanding, taking and managing public finance and liquidation of relevant government departments, government organizations, public organizations and other organizations, participating in and managing an agreement”. If losses happen, legal action was taken against the offenders under Section 3(a) (2).

Although news regarding corruption of some persons was circulated in the public during the term of the NLD government, scrutiny and taking action were weak. Only three cases, that caused the loss of K20 million and 255,930.69 euros, were prosecuted for the loss of the State from 2019 to 31 January 2021.

After the State Administration Council has assumed the responsibilities of the State, it exposed 186 criminal cases and 45 general cases according to complaints about corruption cases from 1 February 2021 to 31 July 2022. Among them, the persons with current political post from Union ministries and region and state governments and the persons with authority violated financial rules and regulations in government’s projects, construction projects and in the development work of regions and states. Moreover, they broke existing laws, rules and regulations; disobeyed instructions; did personal interests and misused State-owned land plots. Such acts of corruption caused the loss of K259,670 million and US$13,326,746 of State funds in 108 cases.

Due to corruption cases, loss of money of State funds; incorrectness in financial allocation for the public interests; loss of natural resources; lack of efficient use in reclaiming land plots reclaimed; loss of basic rights for the people; and hindrances to local and foreign investment happened in the administration, economic and social sectors, according to the Anti-Corruption Commission.
